Why should you attend?

This Afternoon Tea training course is designed for chefs seeking to develop their skills. A practical hands on course with Ross Sneddon, Executive Pastry Chef at the Balmoral Hotel, Edinburgh.

A quality afternoon tea will drive significant business benefits eg, great GP, a very popular offer for universities during graduation, conferences, retirements and other special occasions. Expectations are high and this course will focus on deluxe pastry skills that can be applied into a University catering offer.

Who should attend?

This course is suitable for University Chefs at all levels. You will need to bring chef whites but all other equipment and ingredients will be provided.

Accommodation can be organised at additional cost.

What are the Highlights?

In this 2 day class you will make a variety of afternoon tea pastries. A colourful and flavourful selection that is modern and visually pleasing without compromising the most important feature “TASTE “

These will be prepared over the two days, we shall focus on Mise en place, how to work with these pastries in a timely and efficient manner, the optimum production schedules and of course finishing and tasting.

These pastries are original recipes, some based on classics that have been revisited but all recipes can be used to build and create your own wonderful creations.

With these pastries we are very conscious that we don’t design things that are difficult to eat or that are more focused on visual appearance, no fashion here only real substance!

The pastries on this course are:-

- Classic Parisian Flan
- Palet d’OR

- Gianduja and Piedmont Hazelnut Choux
- Dundee Cake with Marzipan and Marcona Almonds
- Blackcurrant and Violet Tartlets
- Coconut Tapioca with Caramel Coconut Cream, Pineapple and Lime (vegan)
- And of course – Scones!

The training will start at 9.30 am on Day 1 and will finish at 3.30 pm on Day 2.
